JROTC cadets engage in community service

Gainesville High School JROTC cadets recently volunteered their time and services to the community. As part of the group's community service project, the cadets cleaned Longwood Park, Wilshire Trails, and Holly Park, removing 2555 pounds of debris as well as 20 old tires from the premises.

For the JROTC program, community service is both an ongoing initiative and requirement. Historically, the majority of the community service has been in support of other school programs or needs such as relocating items on the school campus. Lt. Nathan Bourdeau, JROTC Lead Instructor, is currently working to extend the program's focus to include substantial and significant environmental projects and community outreach. "Community service is an outlet that teaches service to the local community and to our fellow man, and is used to emphasize the importance of adding value and giving back to one's community," says Lt. Bourdeau. "We hope to instill behaviors and actions that are consistent with contributing members of society."

Projects are selected based upon logistical considerations (such as how far away and how many cadets can the project allow) as well as which initiatives can add the most value to the community. Choosing to clean the city's local parks was a great service project, proving to be beneficial to the cadets as well as the community. "The logistics were relatively easy, and we could involve the majority of our cadets in the program," explains Lt. Bourdeau. "We all use Longwood Park and Wilshire Trails frequently, and [through this project] we were able to have a significant impact on our community."

GEA students are #ArtSmart

During the month of March, thousands of schools around the nation participate in Youth Art Month which focuses on promoting art and art education with the involvement of local art museums and civic organizations. Gainesville Exploration Academy joined in celebrating art in education through Youth Art Month activities organized by GEA art teacher, Tandy Ray. Students enjoyed an exciting week of daily trivia questions, Color Choice Days, Dress like Art or Like an Artist Day, and Crazy Leprechaun Patterns Day!

Artwork from GEA and other local schools are on exhibit at the Quinlan Visual Arts Center now through April 8th. The purpose of the event is to bring awareness of the many benefits of having art programs in schools.

Our students will think critically, act compassionately, work meaningfully, choose wisely, and live joyfully.

Students volunteer to build Habitat house

Habitat for Humanity of Hall County held a dedication and blessing ceremony on March 17th to celebrate the completion of a newly constructed home. Several people gathered to bestow well wishes to the new homeowners as they begin to settle in their new home. The special celebration included many volunteers (and supporters) who invested their time and services to assist in constructing the home for the family.

Gainesville High School construction students played a major role in the construction process, volunteering many hours to help build the home. Gainesville High School, a designated Habitat High School, has partnered with Habitat for Humanity for several years. Through this partnership, GHS students are able to utilize their construction skills learned in the classroom as well as actively engage in community service. Building Habitat homes is a heartwarming project that brings many people together for a special cause - to fulfill a family's dream of owning a new home!

Preparing Our Students For The Workforce

GHS Faculty on Fire - Mrs. Helen Perry

Mrs. Helen Perry is no stranger to getting the community to unite to celebrate a common cause. Whether the event is a football game, school assembly, or special celebration, she is often the ringleader (and sideline cheerleader) in rallying the community together. When the idea developed regarding having a community-wide celebration to commemorate the the school system's 125th anniversary, Helen Perry did not hesitate to take the role as one of the co-chairs in organizing the event.

On March 20th, Mrs. Perry was honored as the recipient of the 2017 Faculty on Fire award for Gainesville High School at the district's board meeting. Described by her peers as "Ms. Gainesville", Mrs. Perry is a dedicated Red Elephant alum, with her father and three sons, Michael, Tyler, and Lewis also being GHS graduates. Her husband of 36 years, Mike, knows and understands the pride that Helen has regarding GHS and the Gainesville community. It's no surprise that one of Mrs. Perry's best memories is when the GHS football team won the state championship title in 2012. She recalls that it was an awesome opportunity to see the excitement in the community and it was fun to experience as the football cheerleading sponsor especially with her sons, Michael and Tyler, on the football coaching staff.

Because of her love for GHS, she has not minded one bit about wearing the many different hats for the various roles that she has had to fulfill. Currently serving as the Work-Based Learning Coordinator, she also leads the Youth Leadership Hall, Medical Scholars, and Commiversity programs. Having started as a substitute teacher then promoted to an ESOL paraprofessional in 1999, Mrs. Perry taught her first Business Education class in 2008. For many years, she also served as Student Council Sponsor and as Varsity Football Cheerleading Coach.

Evident from her extensive list of roles, Mrs. Perry is invested in Gainesville High School; but, most importantly, she is deeply invested in her students. "Kids have to know that you care for them," said Mrs. Perry. "You must establish relationships so you know your students, and they understand that you want them to succeed. It is my job to help provide opportunities for students to be successful whether it is an internship in Work-Based Learning, or student participation in Medical Scholars, Communiversity, or Youth Leadership Hall."

Mrs. Perry's primary goal as an educator is to provide opportunities for her students that guide them in their career choices such as job shadowing experiences, field trips, guest speakers, and any resources that assist in connecting students with the business community. As the Work-Based Learning Coordinator, she strives to connect students to a work experience that aligns with their career goals to better prepare them for their future. Under her guidance, she wants students to understand the importance of good work ethics and how good ethics open the doors for more opportunities and advancement within their prospective job fields.

When asked how she would describe herself, Mrs. Perry's immediate response: "blessed". She explains, "I have a great family and a job that I love. I am very thankful for the opportunities that I have been given. I love my students!"

Mrs. Perry is "blessed" to have the opportunity to be an integral part of the many wonderful things occurring at her high school alma mater and to be involved in the school's rich tradition. On the other hand, Gainesville High School is truly fortunate to have Mrs. Perry as a role model, mentor, and cheerleader to the many students who she encounters. Mrs. Perry will always remain a part of Gainesville High School's rich tradition, and as stated in the school's mantra - "Tradition NEVER graduates" - it just keeps getting better over time!
